TRIBUTE TO GRAYCE BODGEN ARNOLD

HON. RAÚL M. GRIJALVA

OF ARIZONA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, February 14, 2006

Mr. GRIJALVA. Mr. Speaker, Grayce Bodgen Arnold was originally from Philadelphia, PA, and arrived in Arizona through her husband, John Patton Arnold, who had been commissioned by Popular Mechanics and the Triple A Automotive Association to publish the first motor tourist guide of Mexico in the mid 1950's. The family, then including their first two children, moved to Nogales, AZ. The family later moved to settle in Tucson, where their third child, Janie, was born.

Throughout this time Grayce had been developing her cooking and artistic talent. While she lived in Doylestown, PA, her neighbor Sara Lee was a constant presence in Grayce's kitchen, sampling her cooking. At the same time she was also working on her artistic talent, she worked with famed Tucson artist Ted DeGrazia at his studio. In addition to her artistic and cooking talents, she also developed her business skills.

Through the years, her business ventures brought her in contact with many people, including film stars Faye Dunaway and Joanna Cassidy, and then Governor George W. Bush. Also it was at this time that her designs for Patagonia's first three postcards came out, displaying her civic involvement to promote Patagonia as a tourist destination.

In 1976, Grayce's son, Dr. John David Arnold, bought the Miner's Old Home in Patagonia, which was built in 1905. At the time, the house was not in good condition, but was remodeled to be made fit for living, and is where Grayce lived until the end of her life. This is also where Grayce Gift and Candle Shop operated from for almost three decades. Grayce's artistic talents are displayed in her shop, which is more than a shop, instead it is more like part museum and art gallery. Grayce's artistic collections include her award winning sand cast candle dioramas, creative masks and one of her greatest sculptures, her rendition of the Tarahumara man squatting in contemplation in traditional dress.

Grayce was inspiring; she was so full of life, physically active and ran her own business until the age of 97. She would be the first to tell you that age is irrelevant, after all, while in her sixties she belly danced, remarried and launched her artistic career. She always told her children, "be creative, never stop dreaming, and help others." She was an amazing woman who will be remembered to those who loved her and to the many whose lives she touched.

HONORING CAPTAIN KEVIN C. MURRAY

HON. DAVID WU

OF OREGON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, February 14, 2006

Mr. WU. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor CAPT Kevin C. Murray, who lost his life while performing his duties as a Columbia River bar pilot on the night of January 9, 2006.

Where the Columbia River meets the Pacific Ocean is spectacularly beautiful, yet it is also the worst river bar passage in North America. Columbia River bar pilots have steered vessels in the lower Columbia across the treacherous bar since 1846, making it one of the oldest businesses in the Pacific Northwest. This shallow bar has claimed some 2,000 vessels and 700 lives since the early 19th century.

During a transfer back to the pilot boat Chinook, in heavy winter seas, Captain Murray, 50, a resident of Ilwaco, WA, and Boothbay, ME, was thrown into the ocean waters. Despite the valiant efforts of his crew, Captain Murray succumbed to the frigid ocean temperatures. He is survived by his wife, Lori Stetson Murray, and his mother, Phyllis Murray, of Boothbay Harbor, ME.

Captain Murray was a seasoned, experienced scholar of the seas. He began his career working on towing vessels, towing semi-submersible oil rigs in and out of the Gulf of Mexico. He later captained a 700-foot oil tanker, the Blue Ridge, and held an unlimited master's license allowing him to captain any size vessel in any waters in the world. He had extensive experience in the waters from Alaska to San Francisco, resulting in his recruitment by the Columbia River Bar Pilots in 2004. Fellow Columbia River bar pilots remember Captain Murray as a wonderful person, a strong, silent type, with a quiet, hidden sense of humor.

I extend my heartfelt condolences to Lori, his wife; Phyllis, his mother; and all of his family and friends. This tragic drowning, the first loss of a Columbia River bar pilot since 1973, highlights the danger that these brave pilots face daily in navigating the Columbia River bar, also known as the "graveyard of the Pacific". The bar pilots navigate cruise ships, U.S. Navy vessels, foreign vessels and cargo vessels, inbound and outbound on the Columbia River through the bar. Their skills and work are crucial aspects of the economic health of the deepwater ports of Oregon and Washington and the livelihood of the Pacific Northwest.

Mr. Speaker, I rise not only to honor Captain Murray, but to honor all of his fellow bar pilots on the Columbia River, who stand as their own class of heroes of the sea.

TRIBUTE TO REVEREND DR. C.W. NEWSOME

HON. GEORGE MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, February 14, 2006

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, it was with overwhelming sadness that I learned of the passing of The Reverend Dr. C.W. Newsome last week. For more than 40 years my friend and mentor Rev. Charles Newsome served as a moral compass for our community. For more than 40 years he was our spiritual rock and for more than 40 years he was our seeker of justice. There was no question in his mind or ours why God put him on this earth. Rev. Charles Newsome came to us to lead the way in the struggle for economic and social justice and to heal the scars of racism on our country and our community. And he did. With strength and trust given to him by the people he served, he fought for the rights of all people to seek opportunity and to be free from bigotry. He understood that there was no other way for us to build a lasting integrated and strong community. Year after year our friend led the efforts for better housing, schools, jobs, and health care for everyone. So very often he took his church, North Richmond Missionary Baptist Church, and its members into the forefront of these battles. Rev. Newsome knew the strength of the church depended on its involvement with the daily needs of its members and our community. Over these many years I have enjoyed our conversations, treasured his friendship, and highly valued his counsel on a wide variety of issues.

Reverend Newsome was born on June 15, 1924, in Brenham, Texas. Prior to his commitment to the faith ministry, he served valiantly as a U.S. Marine, in the Segregated Corps, fighting against Nazi fascism in the European Theater of World War II. An injury forced him to leave the service and he eventually came to Richmond, continuing to support our country's effort by working in the shipyards. His participation in shipbuilding and that of the countless African Americans who migrated west during the war, led Richmond to become one of the leading industrial hubs of the world. Today his legacy and that of all of the men and women who built our country's warships has been memorialized as Rosie the Riveter National Historic Park.

With an insatiable appetite for learning, Reverend Newsome attended Contra Costa College for his AA Degree, the University of California Berkeley for his undergraduate work, Bishop College in Dallas to study theology, and received his Doctorate from Reeds Christian College—Western Theology Seminary in Los Angeles. Following the completion of his studies, he began his life's work. Rev. Newsome's ministry has included Organizing Pastor of Holy Jerusalem Missionary Baptist Church in Richmond, and heading the Community Baptist Church in Santa Rosa, California. In 1966 he took on the pastoral duties at North Richmond Baptist Missionary Church. Building on his congregation's stature in the community as the first "Negro Baptist Church of Contra Costa County", Rev. Newsome continued to break new ground in the name of social justice. He led laborers to fight for equality in the workplace and led families to fight for safety in our schools and on our streets.
